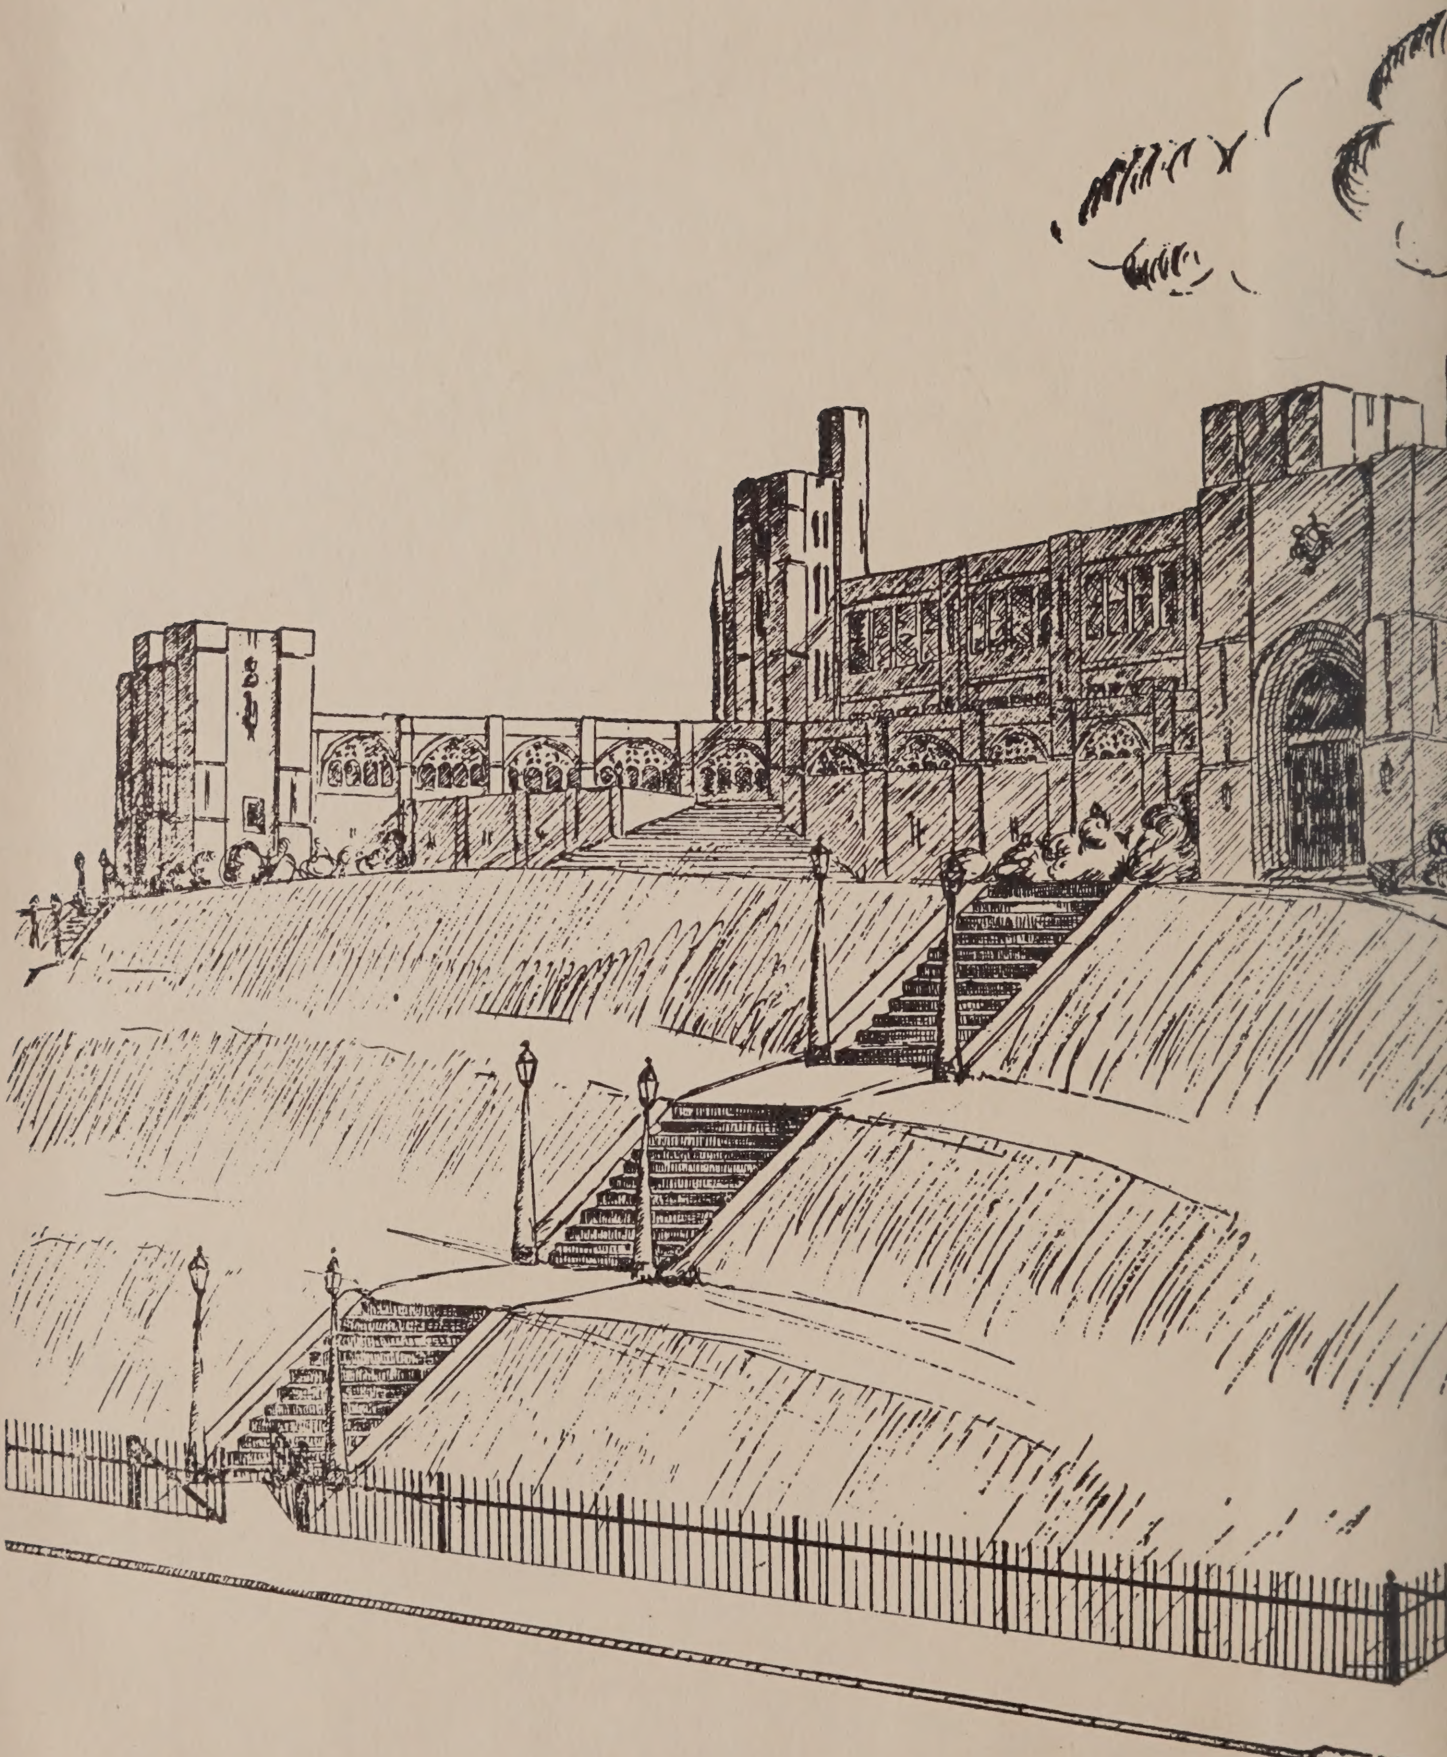
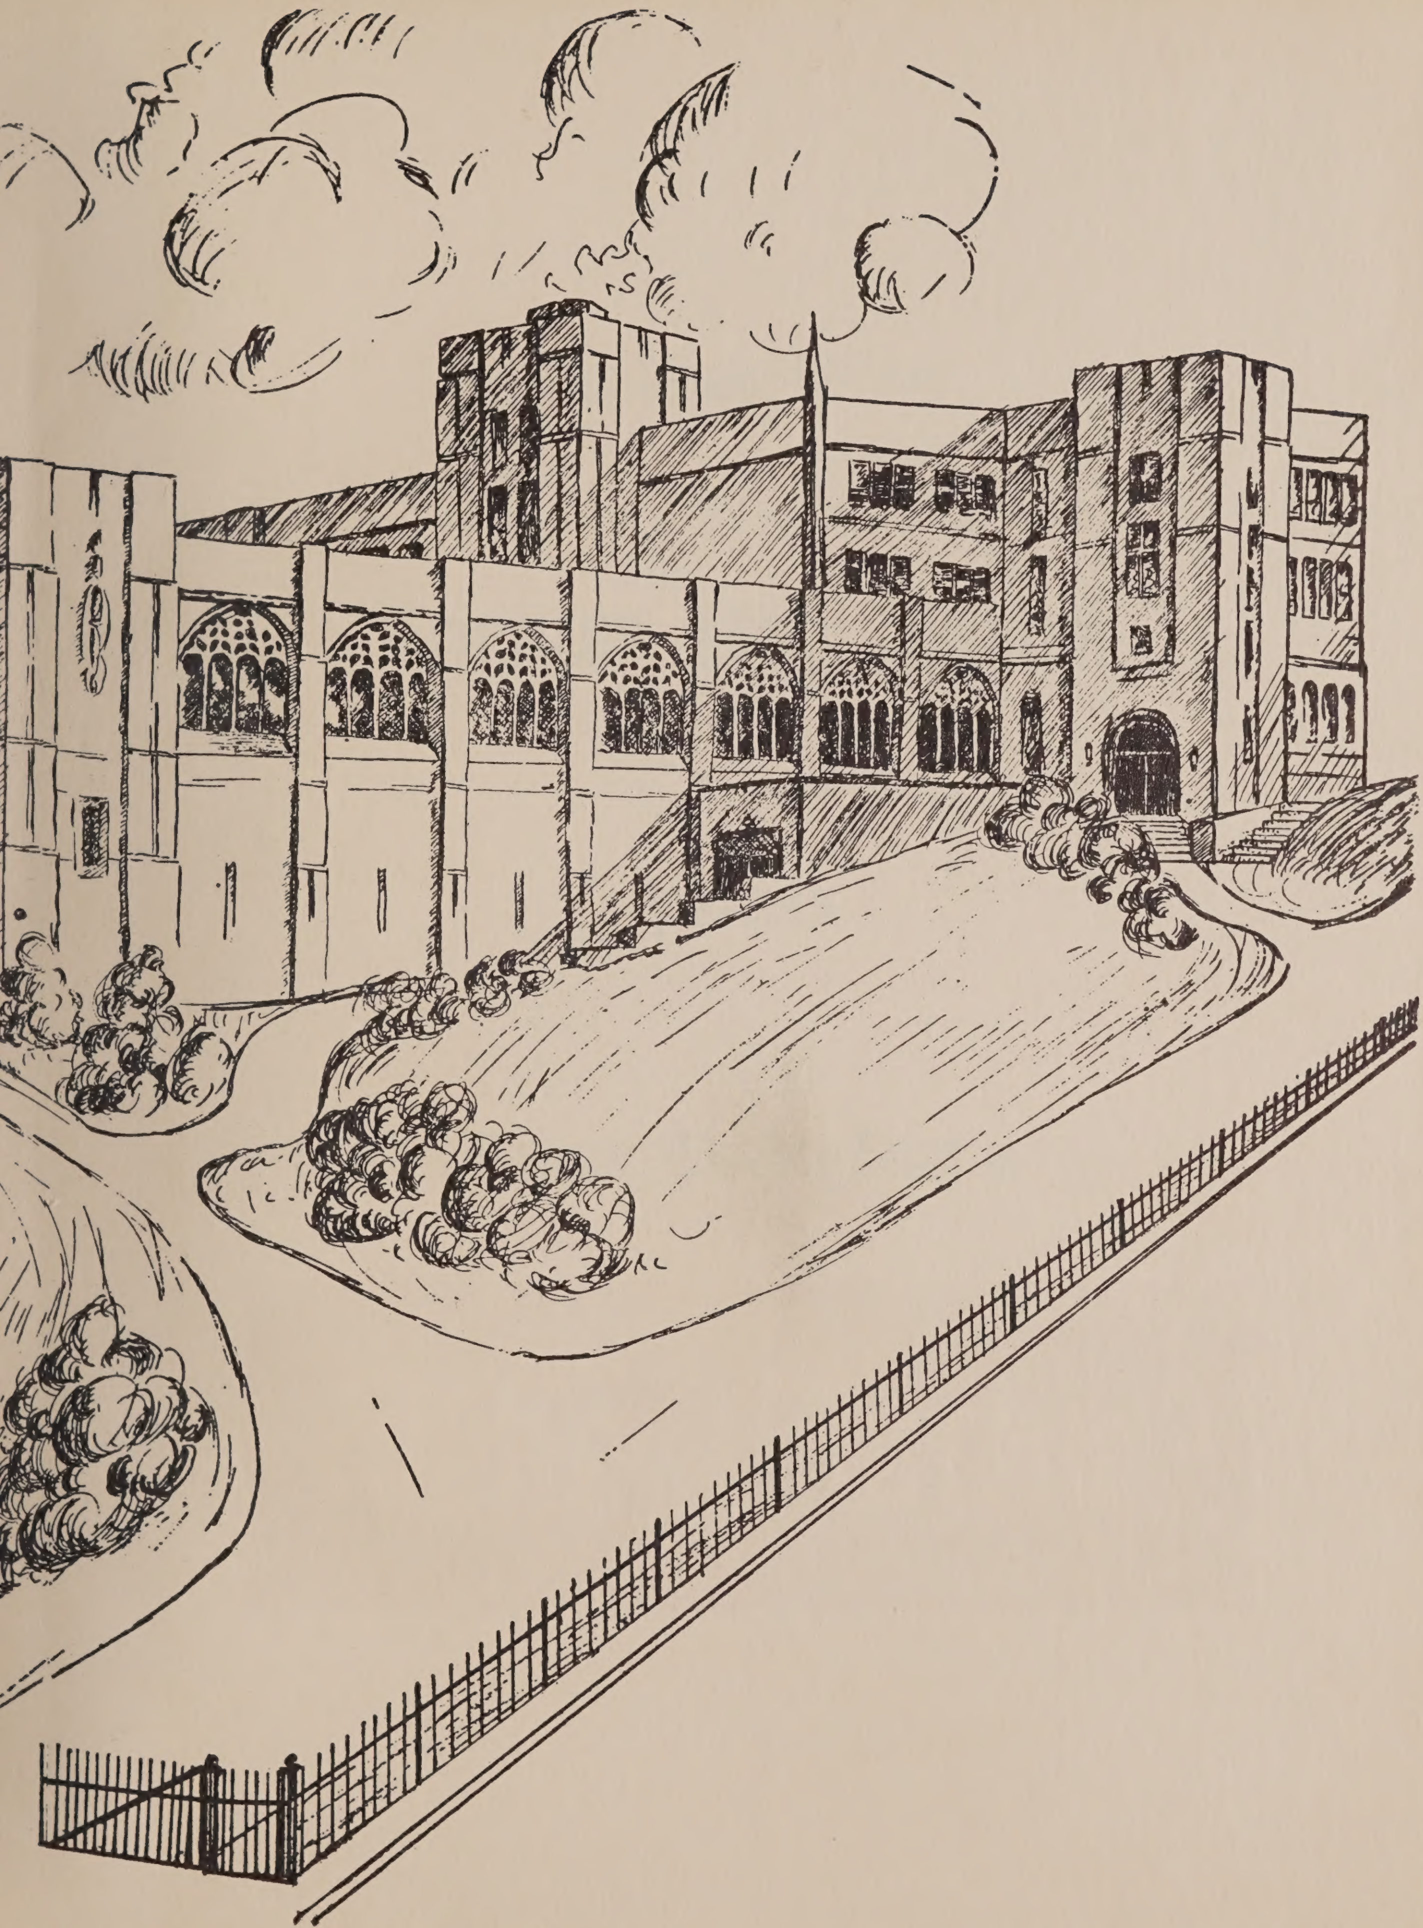
The Gothic





The Class Of 1957

Brighton High School

presents

Volume Twenty-Nine of

The Gothic

MR. M. HENRY McINERNEY

HEAD MASTER

HEAD MASTER'S ADDRESS

This is my first year as Head Master of Brighton High School. This message is, therefore, my first to appear in a "Gothic".

The one thought I should like to leave with the members of the Class of 1957 is that of gratitude, and what it implies.

There are many reasons to be thankful for gifts bestowed upon us. More particularly we must be grateful for what Brighton High School means to us. We worked, we played, we had our problems it is true. However, after all is said and done we can truthfully say that it was worth it.

We can number ourselves among the graduates of a great high school. Since 1841, Brighton High School has been preparing young people to meet the problems of adult life. Knowledge has been imparted, but more than that, moral values have been emphasized. An educated person lacking moral standards may become a menace to society. We have been taught to gain knowledge and to maintain good morals. We have been taught to be tolerant of one another and to help one another.

As you enter the field of Brighton High School alumni, you should resolve to keep an abiding interest in your Alma Mater and in your classmates. Those who go far along the road to success should help in every way possible their classmate not so fortunate. Your paths will radiate in many directions, but no matter what course you follow you all have a common starting point, Brighton High School, as of June 1957. Whenever and wherever you meet again be true to one another and of necessity you will be true to Brighton High School.

M. HENRY McINERNEY

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

DONALD MURPHY

We are assembled here today for the last time in our high school life. This day with its colorful ceremony is a fitting climax to all of the happy times we have enjoyed. In years to come, though our paths may separate, we shall look back on our stay at Brighton High School and be proud of our class. None of us can ever forget the help and encouragement received from our parents and teachers, help and encouragement without which many of us would not have reached graduation. With graduation fast approaching, we are thinking seriously of the future and what it holds for us. Some will continue their schooling while others will enter the business world, but whatever we may do we shall always have the foundation that we have acquired while students here.

None of us can foresee how the present world situation will develop; nevertheless, with recent stories of the uprisings in Hungary and Poland, and their ruthless suppression, we realize that we are faced once again with the threat of ambitious rulers seeking to spread their doctrines of hatred and fear across the world. The best example of this is the uprising that took place in Hungary. The youth, trained as communists, finally realizing the horrors that had befallen their country during its enslavement, revolted, and with a few weapons drove the oppressors from their land. Then, after having promised a truce, the Russians gathered troops on her borders and on Sunday, November 4, struck with overwhelming force. This heartless execution of 25,000 Hungarians showed to all the world the real policy of the Kremlin. The waves of nationalism that have been sweeping over all the world can not be suppressed, for, in the end, truth and right shall win out. What significance do these events hold for us? They mean that our generation, looking back at these atrocities, must put away any and all hates or prejudices that it may have, and show by its actions that it is worthy of citizenship in our great land. If we do this we shall be showing to all freedom-loving peoples of the world that America is truly the home of liberty. In doing this we shall be reflecting credit on our parents and on our teachers, from whom we have learned the principles of Americanism.

EDITORS' NOTE

Fellow Classmates:

We deem it to be a great honor and a privilege to present to you this, the twenty-ninth volume of The Gothic.

We are greatly indebted to Mr. Kelliher, sponsor, Mr. Walsh, financial advisor, and Miss Gilman, literary advisor, for without their co-operation the publication of this book would have been impossible.

In future years, as you refer to The Gothic, we hope that you will have fond memories of your days at Brighton High.

SPIRIT OF

BRIGHTON HIGH SCHOOL

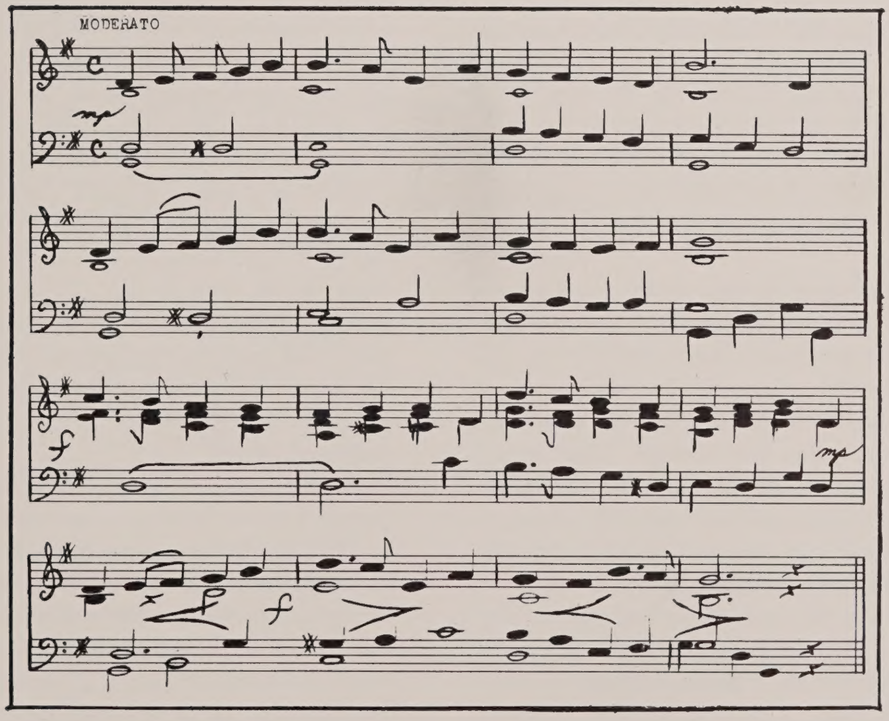
CLASS OF 1957

CLASS SONG - 1957

Farewell to thee, O Brighton High,
The parting hour draws nigh,
Our hearts are filled with mem'ries dear
Of golden years gone by.
We assemble and salute you,
Alma Mater staunch and true,
We lift our song in thanks and praise
On graduation day.

Though we may wander far from thee,
Our paths will e'er return,
To live again those wondrous days,
When hearts with zeal did burn.
May we cherish and remember
Noble instincts firm in right,
O lift our souls to bright endeavor,
Be our Beacon Light!

Shirley-Reva Levine



JOAN GARFIELD

CLASS ORATION

. . . Thus another Class Day passes away into the annals of history. . . .

The Class of 1957 has advanced to the threshold of a new era, paused for a second, and then stepped out into that beckoning future.

For the past three years, all our efforts and labors have been directed to the realization of an ambition. . . . graduation from high school.

But now, upon graduation, we find it only the achievement of a goal which brings us a step nearer to the criterion, the peak of ambitions which we have set for ourselves.

For now we've come to the parting of the ways, the road diverges, and the paths are twofold. One course offers us a niche of success in the business world; the other, the furthering of our education in college, preparation for our professions, our careers. Both are fraught with obstacles, pitfalls, and hardships which have to be overcome, but which in the end make our goal all the more cherished.

Our proud parents, who have given so much of themselves for us, surreptitiously wipe their eyes as they look fondly at their happy, hopeful children. Our headmaster, our teachers, having done so much, will find their reward in our accomplishments, which will be a tribute to their patience and fortitude.

Our graduation will be the commencement of a new voyage . . . a voyage which, through earnest effort, will allow us to sail steadily with a current bearing us over many tumultuous waves. Yet, now, as we stand at the helm and watch the small channels broadening and opening into new horizons for us, let us head for that distant shore and proudly salute Brighton High School. "Flow, flow, flow, the current of life is ever onward . . ."

There is a place waiting for every one of us. We are wanted and needed to help build the "singing tomorrows" Never in human history has there been a period so interesting as the present one. If we can help to use atomic energy for peace, if we can end discrimination and injustice, if we can open the doors of education and culture for all, if we can help do away with poverty and want and sickness . . . oh, what a country and what a world we'll work and live in!

As the years roll by and we become further and further parted from each other, when bonds of friendship formed in Brighton become pleasant memories, become vague incidents, there will still remain to all an indestructible bridge across the gap between misty yesterday and uncertain today. We will always come together to see justice done, to work for peace, to advance thought, to achieve brotherhood. It is an ever-recurring act of hope and love, and it moves the world.

We shall encounter obstacles; difficulties of all kinds lie in our path. But the truth, the living truth marches by our side.

"Ye shall know the truth
And the truth shall make you free."

CLASS POEM

WE'LL REMEMBER

BRENDA MILLER

Now, as we end these happy years,
We turn with grateful hearts to you,
Dear Alma Mater, you who gave
The realized dream, the will to do —
This we'll remember.

How young we were when first we came,
Glad, eager, but uncertain still:
The quickened breath with which we viewed
Our splendored Castle on the Hill —
This we'll remember.

Your tall gray towers, staunchly standing,
Prayerfully reaching toward the sky,
Making us feel secure and safe
Within beloved Brighton High —
This we'll remember.

Our teachers, counselors and friends,
Our guides in knowledge, brotherhood,
In growing wisdom, firm desire
To serve the universal good —
We'll happily remember.

Blazed in our memory loyal friends
Who common joys and sorrows shared;
The football games and merry dances,
And tests — no matter how we fared —
These we'll remember.

Leaving these cherished years behind,
Entering a world unknown and wide,
We find that under all our hopes
A trembling tear or two we hide,
As we remember.

We must go forward valiantly
To find our place in broader spheres;
Brighton, that you have taught us how
To face our future without fears,
We'll always remember.

The school we love, the friends we love,
We bid adieu but not good-bye;
We pledge, with hand and heart, to strive
To bring you fame, dear Brighton High;
That you inspired our questing youth
To value justice, freedom, truth,
We'll evermore remember.

Brenda Miller

JOAN PICKETT

CLASS HISTORY

How vividly we all remember the mingled feelings of excitement and anxiety that were ours when we first entered the Gothic structure of Brighton High School.

Now at last we belonged to that glamorous high school set. What did it matter if the supercilious seniors and the jaunty juniors tried to sell us passes for the elevator or tickets to the non-existent swimming pool? Someday we would belong to the upper classes and perpetrate elaborate hoaxes upon the newcomers.

Our high spirits were somewhat dampened, however, to learn that our Headmaster, Mr. Leary, was ill and could not greet us on our arrival. With eager anticipation we awaited his return. Members of the faculty who also entered Brighton with us were Mr. Wellings, Miss Tremblay, now Mrs. Brennick, Mr. Manfra, and Mr. Vozella.

Two outstanding presentations impressed us greatly. The Christmas pageant, ably directed by Miss Maguire and Miss Sullivan, inspired us with its religious fervor and beauty. The Talent Show, starring such members as Joan Paolini, Harriet Segal, Marjorie Rosen, and Dorothy LaZure, amused and entertained us.

Shirley-Reva Levine and Joan Garfield were the first to represent our class on the Towers Staff with short stories and poems. Joan also made us proud by defeating two juniors and a senior in a Town Meeting debate.

In the field of sports we were justly proud of Dick Tarris on the hockey team, and Tom Charbonnier, Bill Brady, and Bill Funcheon on the football squad.

Eddie Callaghan and Gerry Fiorentino were prize winners in the B.H.S. Manual of Arms Competiton.

Spring found the Brighton boys ready to take first prize in the School Boy Parade. Spring also brought the election of sophomore cheerleaders Angela Salvucci and Jeannette Lanno. Joseph Hoy was elected Vice-President of the Student Council. As our first exciting year at Brighton High School drew to a close, our biology I class regretted the loss of Mr. Fuller. Miss Woods, Miss McCloskey, and Mr. Romano also left the Castle on the Hill, deepening our sense of loss.

On account of the worst polio epidemic ever to strike Boston, school in 1956 opened two weeks later than usual. Now we felt secure as we gazed at the new recruits who were entering the Castle. Gladly, as upper classmen, we tried to perpetrate some of the tricks we had had played on us one long year ago.

Mrs. Rowell, Mr. Fleming, Mr. Oakes, and Dr. Moore were welcomed to our faculty. Miss McCall left us to take charge of Vocational Guidance at East Boston, and Mr. Sanford came to take her place. Mr. Galvin's retirement was a loss to the Cooperative course.

Once again on the gridiron were Bill Shea, Bill Butler, Bill Funcheon, Jimmy Hickman, Dick Tarris, and Gary Merrill. Gary also starred on the track team, and Barry Reiser played for our basketball team.

Carol Meyer, having been a loyal representative to the Student Council in her sophomore year, was elected treasurer in her junior year.

The graduation of many staff members had left vacant many positions on the Towers which were quickly filled by Maureen Carey, Dorothy Tillotson, Esther Platow, Margery Gaynor, Elaine Sokoloff, Shirley-Reva Levine, and Joan Garfield.

Shirley-Reva Levine and Sheila Hirshfield proved that teenagers can accomplish much good by being competent chairmen of the drive for the Boston Association for Mentally Retarded Children.

January once again brought the spectacular Talent Show, which featured such members of our Junior Class as: Margery Gaynor, Elaine Sokoloff, Shirley-Reva Levine, Josephine Goldman, Gail Nelson, Maryanne Subilosky, Richard Freedman, Joan Paolini, Joan Pickett, Marjorie Rosen, and Madeline Dindy.

More honor was heaped upon B.H.S. when Ronald Hodge, Elaine Greenberg, Marjorie Rosen, and Carol Schlafman won prizes in the American Merchant Marine Contest.

As the school year grew to a close, we elected Carol Meyer, President, and Maureen Carey, Secretary of the Student Council. Barry Reiser was chosen President of the Key Club.

So that we might be prepared to inspire the members of the football team, we elected the vivacious cheerleaders Wanita Horner, Flora O'Connor, Marjorie Mercuri, Mary Lou Colbath, Eleanor Bloom, Sandra Hayes, and Barbara Zevgetis.

A new and exciting experience was the election of Junior Class Officers, with James Hickman, President; Genaro Fiorentino, Vice President; Mary Lou Colbath, Secretary; and Wanita Horner, Treasurer.

Once more June came, and Miss Rhodes and Miss Muir left sad pupils behind. Mr. Murphy, after eighteen years of coaching victorious football and baseball teams, retired as Head Coach. Mr. Leary also bade farewell to the school he loved so much, thereby increasing our sadness.

When September came, we learned that Mr. M. Henry McInerney had come to Brighton to replace Mr. Leary as Head Master. The other new teachers were Mr. Hayes, Mr. Hennessey, Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. Introini, and Mrs. Hyland. The French classes, in January, were glad to welcome Miss Adams back after her long illness.

Immediately our senior year started off with a bang. Marjorie Rosen, Carol Schlafman, Marjorie McDonnell, and Dorothy Tillotson were chosen Co-Editors of the Gothic, and Shirley-Reva Levine and Joan Garfield were chosen Co-Editors-in-Chief of the Towers.

The clubs were soon organized. Shirley-Reva Levine was elected President of the German Club and the Art Club. Joan Garfield was elected President of the Spanish Club; Myrna Mould, of the French Club; Esther Platow, of the Reading Club; and Helen Bell, of the Biology Club.

Again Brighton excelled in all sports. Mr. McCabe, the new Head Coach, moulded one of the mightiest football teams in the history of the Boston district, as well as that of Brighton High. Dave Block made the first touchdown of the season, and we owed our victories to such players as Thomas Hudson, Robert Roomey, James Hickman, Genaro Fiorentino, Gary Merrill, and William Funcheon. The Orange and Black took second place in the track team district championship. We were equally proud of our hockey and basketball teams.

The newly-discovered Salk vaccine was administered to all high school students this year, and when both boys and girls were jabbed with needles of equal size, it was interesting to observe that the weaker sex endured the pain better. Some of our senior boys actually fainted!!!

At a Junior Achievement assembly we were shown how J.A. would teach us business methods. In November we were given a whole day of freedom while the teachers took their turn at being pupils. This event was Business Education Day, on November 8.

Soon many classes were reduced in number as the merchandising pupils went out to work for two weeks before Christmas.

Brighton High School received a letter thanking the students and the teachers for presenting the Christmas Pageant to the handicapped children at the Kennedy Memorial Hospital. It was indeed a heart-warming experience for the pupils who participated.

Two pupils bringing honor to our class were Margaret Blong, who was chosen as the Brighton winner of the Betty Crocker Scholarship Test and Wanita Horner, who represented Brighton High School on Good Government Day.

The assembly honoring Harold Connolly, the Olympic champion, was inspiring to the students in B.H.S., especially to us Seniors, who fervently hope that we may bring as much glory to Brighton High School.

The election of class officers was a difficult one because there were so many candidates for each office. At last we elected Donald Murphy, President; Thomas Charbonnier, Vice-President; Jeannette Lanno, Secretary; Edward Lane, Treasurer; Joan Pickett, Historian; and Joan Garfield, Orator. Maureen Carey headed the Executive Committee, to which Wanita Horner and James Martyn were later elected. Mary Kelliher was voted Chief Marshal. The other marshals were: Eleanor and Harriet Bloom, George Brambilla, Marjorie McDonnell, Georgia Mouyos, Angela Salvucci, and Ruby Saperstein.

On February 4, we elected the following class motto: Fidem qui perdit, ultra perdere nil potest — Who loses honor can lose nothing else.

The school year raced onward. Excitedly some of us exchanged class pictures; anxiously we took college boards, and hopefully applied to various colleges. Others wondered whether we could type fast enough to apply for clerical positions!!!

When rehearsals for Class Day began, we realized sadly that our days at Brighton High School were drawing to a close.

The long-awaited Prom at Longwood Towers, the festivities of Class Day, and the solemnity of graduation will forever remain in our memories, as we walk the paths of life reflecting credit on the school that has played such an important part in our growing up.

CLASS WILL

We, the class of 1957, trying to be of sound mind do hereby submit our last will and testament.

To Brighton High School, our beloved Alma Mater, we leave our happy memories of three wonderful years, our everlasting devotion, our sincere gratitude for excellent guidance, and also a year's supply of Maypo for the lunchroom.

To Mr. McInerney we leave good health, continued success, and our appreciation for his outstanding leadership.

To Mr. O'Keeffe we leave Pam-pa-lum to replace Joe Porc.

To Mr. FitzGerald we leave a class of math geniuses.

To. Mr. Barry we leave his appreciated friendliness and good humor.

To Mrs. Heywood we leave a year's supply of misplaced modifiers.

To Mr. McCabe we leave a championship team, and the gratitude of the Senior Class.

To Mr. Mazer we leave a new front row.

To Mr. Dooley we leave our deepest gratitude to a real nice guy.

To Mr. Murphy we leave the return of his youth so that he himself can run track.

To Doctor Moore we leave a year's supply of cup cakes.

To Mr. Lewis we leave a new airplane.

To Miss Bailey we leave the spirit of Martin Magovsky.

To Miss Sullivan we leave a new set of math books for her and her sister.

To Miss Johnson we leave a piggy bank to hold all the gum chewing nickels.

To Mrs. Rowell we leave a class of handsome boys.

To Miss Green we leave a new set of blackboard erasers.

To Miss O'Brien we leave a new supply of frogs and some odorless formaldehyde.

To Miss Blagdon we leave a double set of master keys.

To Mrs. Hyland we leave some records for dancing periods.

To Miss Marshall we leave another efficient Towers staff.

Charles O'Keefe leaves his nickname "Shorty" to the tallest boy in the junior class.

Judy Abbott leaves her seat in 304 to some talkative junior.

Fred Wilks leaves behind his homework and overdue credit.

Charles Thomas leaves the keys to his strongbox.

Art Fuller leaves a fond farewell to the "Castle on the Hill".

Jeanette Lanno leaves her co-captainship to Jeannette Howells.

Natalie Alpert leaves her height.

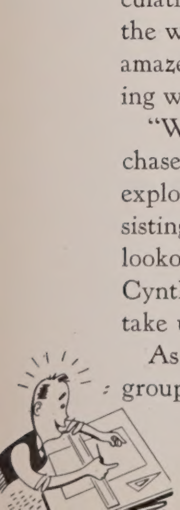
CLASS PROPHECY

In the year 2500, a great catastrophe befell the earth. For many years there prevailed throughout the universe an uncanny cosmic mist, unobserved and unheeded. Suddenly the mist built up to such magnitude that the action of the combined chemicals altered the foundation of the earth to such an extent as to bring about its total submersion into the sea.

My three colleagues and I had been selected, in 2450, to be the first human beings to test the new satellite sent up by the earth. In this satellite, we had been kept alive in a state of suspended animation, and in the fateful year of 2500, the missile was automatically recalled to earth. You can imagine our surprise and horror, when as the porthole opened, we discovered that instead of air, we were completely surrounded by water. Our calculations had proved that land should have been where the water now was. This must be the rainy season! Our amazement mounted upon the realization that our breathing was in no way hindered by our unusual surroundings.

"We crashed in the jungle"—and as we left the spacerchaser for the cool pool, we were met by that famed explorer Sheena Daniels and her water-wing safari consisting of Marilyn Wencis, water carrier; Claire Warner, lookout; Joan Katkovsky, sea horse and eel tender; and Cynthia Griffin, tribal interpreter. Sheena volunteered to take us along the Aquian Way to Mudville.

As we neared civilization, that famous recording group, three drips and a drop, on the wet label, could be heard jazzing from a jumping jute chute — Ronnie Racoobian on the horn, Paul Ceppi on the guitar, Al Sterns on the drums; and wait a minute, there he is, wading through the marsh, Irv Bluestein, wagging his bugle behind him.



We stopped off at the Monahan and Morgan garage to refuel our sea horses. There we discovered that Eli the electric eel had developed a short circuit. It was our good fortune that Edward Lane, the noted fishician was on hand. While he was resetting Eli's fuse, Bob Rosenstein, Louis Lagana, and John Rose were busy servicing our seahorses.

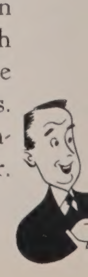
Upon the completion of the job, we left the gas station and made our way toward Mudville. As we entered the city, we were greeted by the Marine Corps. General Robert Elliott introduced us to his staff — Joseph Belskis, Colonel; Hollis Allan, Lieutenant Colonel; Earl Blanchette, Captain; Paul Bracy, Master Sergeant; and Edward Bristol, officer in charge of motor-pool.

The Marines led us to the city hall where the switchboard operator Millie Steriti told us where we could find the mayor. On the way to his office, we met Wanita Horner — Legal Senate Secretary, and Betty Finn, secretary to the ambassador to Russia. The mayor's executive secretary Rita Cohen greeted us and introduced us to Mayor George Brambilla. He had just come out of a conference with three leading businessmen — Barry Reiser, President of Colgoat Palolive Feet Company, manufacturers of artificial flat feet; Gary Merrill, President of the Heart Throbbers Inc.; and Art Buckley, owner of Lacquer Flacker Cadillacer Motor Company.

We did not detain the mayor because he told us that he had a mechanics convention scheduled momentarily with such prominent men as Joseph Champagne, Martin Cleary, Walter Fennessey, Charles Kelly, Accurzio, Maniscalco, Tom Brockway, and Rocco Marinello. Preparations were being made by Joan Quirici, publicity chairman; Katherine Bogan, decorator; Judy Bricker, floral designer; Dorothy Tillotson and Maureen Carey, photographers and Magovsky and Collins caterers.

At this time, debilitated by an ineluctable and potent jejuneness, we emitted soft roars of hunger from our larynges. We were hungry ! ! !

As we descended the stairs, one of our colleagues was asked a question; and upon hearing no answer, we turned only to observe him taking an upward trend. We quickly grabbed his feet, and while two of us held him down, the third called the hospital. The ambulance arrived and William Cairns, John Callahan, Gardner Carney and Edward Nasson assisted in transporting our friend to the hospital. Assisting the assistants were nurses Joyce McCullough, Joan Pickett and Joyce DeAngelis. Ready to give an emergency sea-weed transfusion were John McGrath and Edward Muchowski. The driver, Joseph Paulding, suggested that we eat in the cafeteria of the Waterlulu Hospital while we wait for the diagnosis. When we arrived, our order was taken by Roseann Santoro. While we ate, Caroline Holmes, head nurse; Dr.



Richard Freedman, noted optometrist; Judy Burr and Philomena Capodilupo, laboratory technicians; Shirley Levine, Pathologist; Kathy Morakis, Physical Therapist; Sandy Brick, psychologist; and medical secretaries Patricia Hatch and Roslyn Osofsky. Sitting at a table on our right was Evelyn Frankel, publicity chairman of the Heart Fund, who was discussing her new campaign with Kenneth Norris, William T. Ryan, and William F. Ryan, district chairmen. Looking on were Sherwin Snyder, test tube cleaner, and George Stagno, official test tube dirtier to keep the test tube cleaner busy. Robert Dugan, boy millionaire doing volunteer work (noble fellow), brought the analysis of our unfortunate friend. Severe waterlogamitis. In other words he was all washed up. Doctor on this case was Marshall Scheinfeld who also managed the hospital's basketball team consisting of Ed Bowes, left tackle; Dave Crawford, right tackle; James Fetch, right end; Gerry Fiorentino, left end, and Lloyd Rosenberg, rear—tackle.

Our friend was given a blotter pill to soak up the water, and we all left the hospital to go to the W-A-T-E-R-F-V-C-O-3-3-1-7 AM, FM, and MHM television station. As we dog paddled along Polluted Path, we passed the James Agabedis High School. Teaching at this school were Brenda Miller, teacher of hieroglyphics; Joanne Vacca, English teacher; Sheila Hirshfield and Esther Platow, professors of Chemistry; Priscilla Deban, government teacher; Aprille Quaglia, comptometer teacher; Geraldine Scardino, professor of Submerged Air Reserve; Carole Rettie, teaching a course in "How to Become Secretary to President of American Airlines"; and Barbara Zevgetis teaching a course in "The Ways of Man". The School's guidance counselors were Margie Heath and Gloria Johnson. Nurses were Anne Fitzgerald and Frances Kelley. Barry Gowen and Dick Vannelli were the school doctors. Also present were football coach Bill Connelly, baseball coach Robert Higgins, Bucky Oppenheim — outstanding leader of the gun racks, and Dave Stockley — coach of the Girls' Rifle team. Leaving the schoolyard, we saw the varsity jumprope team at practice. Co-captains James Oates and Myron Gilbert were keeping the members Maureen O'Connor, Norma Cardinal, Dorothy Casey, Teresa Owen, and Ellen Murphy in shape by long and vigorous exercise.

We continued on our way. At the next corner we saw crowds of people lining up near a bright neon sign advertising the Tehan and Olson Fashions of 2510. The show was to take place in the new exclusive Starlight Paladium constructed by John Pennett, Gail Nelson, Dan Viscogliosi, and Robert Marino. The architects were George Stagno, Tom Tighe, and Oliver White. This being a premier, many celebrities attended. Pulling up to the curb, amidst the bright lights and multitude of voices, in his chauffeur drawn new fish tail fin was Joseph Hoy, famed movie star. Sitting on the curb was Charles Meszoely diligently painting the picture of George McLean, famous assistant producer to Cecil B. De Eel. Standing on the sidelines was Edward Keohan the notorious columnist who was dictating notes to his stenographer, Shirley Jacobs.

As we entered the Paladium, the curtain was rising on the dancing of Eleanor St. Louis, Elaine Cameron, Marcia Frizzel, Winifred Long, Claire Malkofsky and Sheila Murphy led by Sheryl Kaiser. After the dance number, the fashion show began under the narration of Illona Zwolska. Musical interludes of the first portion of the show were sung by Josephine Goldman, that "Gold Record Star", and the second by Maryann Subilosky who has won fame by her record, "Playing Second Fiddle to a Basketball". Both were accompanied by Janet L'Abbe, Francis Keeler, and Edward McGillicuddy. After Stephanie McHugh, Mary Kelliher, Margie Mercuri, and Bobby Nerenberg modeled, there was a brief intermission. Our attention was drawn to a sudden thud in the left rear wing caused by the unexpected fall over a nearby lobster pot, by Joan Garfield, prima ballerina. What a picture! And right on hand to snap it were Philomena Scanga and Josephine Spinale, photographers of the Aquaton Citizen, and Marie Spinetti and Clayre Gaskill, reporters of the paper. Concluding the fashion show were models Sandy Goldstone, Marylou Colbath, Joanne Simone, Sally Barton, and Pat Stevens.

We left the theatre to find lodgings for the night. As we walked toward our destination, something filmy and clammy enveloped us. We had no idea of what it could be, but it reminded us of something we had encountered before. All at once it struck us. How could we have been so blind! This must have been what occurred to the earth while we were in our satellite. Brave souls that we were, we followed up our first noble impulse — RUN ! ! ! That we did — right past the paladium, school, hospital, statehouse, garage, and through the jungle. This was it! There was our spacer-chaser less than 10 feet away and the ground was already beginning to crumble beneath us. What were we to do? FLY — FLY ROYAL AIRCOACH ! ! !
